From the Pastor

The theme for the Angelus' project "Beauty Given, Beauty Experienced" is a play on one of St. Augustine of Hippo's famous quotes from The Confessions: "O beauty ever ancient, ever new". St. Augustine is reflecting and lamenting on the fact that is has taken him many, many years to fully appreciate the beauty of God. For so long, he sought out the things of this world. While man-made, worldly creations can be beautiful, their beauty is fleeting, and the human person can easily get tired of it and move on to the next best thing. The difference with God, is that his beauty never fades, He is "ever ancient" (existing for all eternity) and "ever new" (he continues to personally show his goodness to each individual). This is one the mysteries that a church building should try to show forth. While the church is a man-made creation, it should try to draw a soul to experience Beauty itself, through prayer, liturgy, and the sacraments, particularly the Eucharist. God is continually trying to show forth His beauty to "draw all creation to himself" (John 12:32). Just as St. Augustine was drawn into the eternal beauty of the Divine, may the work that has been done to St. Paul's in Angelus continue draw souls to the Eternal Beauty who is "ever ancient, ever new".
